

User Permissions GUI

The way this GUI will operate is VERY simple. All this means is that when a User wants to see a report, if they don't have access to view that person's information, then they can't view that report. This GUI simply allows you to allow a User to see other User's reports.

1. Below, you simply select the User whose permissions you want to change.

A screenshot of a web form titled "Select User". It features a dropdown menu with the text "-- Select a User --" and a downward arrow. Below the dropdown are two buttons: "Select" and "Reset Form".

2. After selecting a user, it sends you to the next page where it shows in the left list what Users the currently selected User can't see, and on the right is a list of the Users that the currently selected User can see.

A screenshot of a web page showing user permissions for "Brad Peterson". At the top, it says "Selected User: Brad Peterson" and provides a hint: "Hint: Push and hold the Ctrl button to make multiple selections." Below this, there are two lists of users. The left list, titled "List of people [USER] cannot see:", contains "Joe Shmoe", "French Canadian", "Danish Ferryman", and "Russian Patrolman". The right list, titled "List of people [USER] can see:", contains "Alfred Hitchcock" and "Asian Countryman". Between the lists are two buttons: "Add >>" and "<< Remove". At the bottom left is a "Reset Form" button.

3. You can then select multiple Users to add to either side. Selecting multiple on the left and then selecting the Add button will run a query that inserts those Users into a table to be viewed by the selected User. Selecting multiples on the right and hitting the remove button will run a query to remove access to those Users in the table.
